Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Saturday 19 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Drier for a time, but further rain for many tonight.

Today:
Low cloud slowly lifting and breaking to leave a mostly dry day with some sunny spells, though some showers affecting northwestern parts. Outbreaks of rain reaching southern England later, some heavy with a risk of thunder.

Tonight:
Rain or showers in the south, some heavy and thundery, moving northwards into central parts. Some drier spells, mainly in the north.

Sunday:
Mostly cloudy in the south with further rain or showers. Some showers for northern Scotland and Northern Ireland. Drier elsewhere with some bright or sunny spells.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Cloudy and wet across the south Monday, Brighter weather further north spreading to all Tuesday. Further light rain into the northwest Wednesday. Cooler than of late, especially for the south.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.